

Week 4 Character Design

I chose "Winter" as my character design prompt.

Winter has many elements, such as cold, Christmas, snow and so on. I think the most obvious feature of the winter characters is the thick and heavy clothing. I ended up choosing a combination of two different ovals from several different shapes. Initially, I wanted to create a big cat that lived in winter and was afraid of the coldness. It had a hairy body and a big tail that had been burned by the stove. And then I designed a little boy in the same shape. He wore a full range of warm clothing, from a plush winter hat to snowshoes. With regard to his unhappy expression, I followed the character's aversion to cold in the previous version of the design. Because in my own experience, I find it troublesome to wear heavy clothes in winter. So he's a little boy who hates the coldness, and also hates having to wear heavy clothes to keep warm in winter.
